Deals.com will be giving away 10 thousand dollars on September 6th. They'll also be handing out $100 gift certificates to ten runner-up winners. Unlike other contests where most of us wouldn't have a shot of winning, this one rewards us for doing something we really need to do - buy school supplies. We really have no choice but to buy them, and Deals.com has made it not only easy, but worth our time. Ten thousand dollars is worth most people's time, right?

"I have three school-aged kids and my wife relegates the back to school shopping to me every single year and I hate it," joked Cotter Cunningham, CEO of WhaleShark Media, the parent company of Deals.com. "We set up the Deals.com back to school page to make it crazy easy for people like me. It's easy and fast and when I checked off the stuff I needed for my three kids I ended up saving close to 45%, plus free shipping...which is a huge bonus! So, check us out at deals.com!"

When you visit the site, not only can you enter to win ten thousand dollars, but you may also get free shipping, free school supplies and up to 50% off your school supplies list. On top of the deals, steals and freebies, you can get all your shopping done (and be entered to win) with only three clicks of your mouse.

Click one: Go to Deals.com and pick your grade range, Pre-K through College.

Click two: Scroll down the lists of supplies and check off anything you need. Notice how Deals.com keeps a real-time running tally of how much you are saving.

Click three: Share your custom list with your Facebook or Twitter pals or via email and you're in the running for ten thousand dollars.
